

ACCOUNTING EDUCATION: THE IMPACT OF GLOBALIZATION

Main Panel Session
American Accounting Association
Hilton New York (USA)
10:15-11:45 am, August 4, 2009
Session 4.2 Second Floor Regent Parlor

Description

This session investigates the impact of globalization on accounting education. Naturally, the adoption of IFRS in most countries of the world has a great impact, but it is only part of a wider movement that includes the globalization of business. Even small enterprises are extensively involved with global supply chains. Accounting and auditing firms are global organizations or parts of global organizations. In this context, “international accounting education” is not just a subset or specialty in accounting education, accounting education has become synonymous with international accounting education

Moderator:

Belverd E. Needles, Jr., Vice-President Education, AAA;
DePaul University

Panelists:

Globalization and Accounting Education – The Role of the IAESB and Academia

Mark Allison, Chairman, International Accounting Education Standards Board (IAESB)

IAAER/ACCA Research Projects: Supporting the Agenda of the International Accounting Education Standards Board

Gary Sundem, Vice-President-Education, International Association for Accounting Education and Research (IAAER); University of Washington

Accounting Education: The Impact of Globalization

Michael Wells, IASC Foundation; Director, IFRS Education Initiative

The Impact of Globalization on Accounting Education in Japan

Kazuo Hiramatsu, American Accounting Association (AAA), Vice-President-International; Kwansai Gakuin University